Editor's Message

We are continuing to move toward a journal that will set the standard for information dissemination for environmental public health professionals. As part of this we have appointed an editorial board that will help with maintaining a standard in publishing and aid in providing strategic guidance to the Environmental Health Review. I am pleased to be surrounded by such dedicated and knowledgeable individuals that will be as committed as myself and the National Executive Council in developing and maintaining a journal that the profession can be proud of. The members of the editorial board of the Environmental Health Review are listed below, and I would like to thank them for agreeing to serve on the board and thank them in advance for their knowledge and guidance.
